

Your support now can help save inspiring stained glass windows

Sitting in the pew or standing in the center nave aisle, historic Trinity Cathedral's stained glass windows are breathtaking. But look up close, and the damage to the windows might just take your breath away.

The majority of Trinity Cathedral's stained glass windows were designed and installed between the mid-1920s and the 1950s. One is signed and dated 1925 when the Cathedral was built. The frames of many windows have deteriorated so much so that water simply pours in. Others are warped and still others don't fully close. All of this contributes to ongoing deterioration not only of the windows but also of the Cathedral's Italian mosaics, interior walls and even the building's infrastructure.

Estimates put the cost of completely repairing and restoring the stained glass windows at $1.5 million.

You can help save these sacred and inspiring windows by making a gift now to Friends of Trinity Cathedral, an organization of the Cathedral dedicated to the restoration and preservation of this historic sacred space.

Make your gift today, and help preserve historic Trinity Cathedral. Every gift ensures that this sacred and community space will endure for generation after generation.
